

Tanaisha Coleman is a realistic dreamer who strives to advocate for intersectional social change. Tanaisha is committed to leading by example and being a life-long learner of exploring different cultures and perspectives. This passion for the transformation of oppressive systems inspired Tanaisha to start T.C. Consulting, a service-based diversity, inclusion, and equity firm that helps organizations and schools build the agency to effectively manage cultural inequalities today to actualize a more inclusive and equitable tomorrow. Tanaisha consults with individuals, communities, businesses, and schools to foster intentional practices and climates that are diverse, inclusive, equitable, culturally responsive, and socially just. Tanaisha's goal is to empower individuals, businesses, and schools to envision and actualize a better place through social justice accountability consulting, training, workshops, and strategic planning.
